1776 LABS 24-HOUR CHALLENGE · TENNESSEE

THE STORM AND THE WAIT

The storm hit Jan 24. Disaster unemployment opened about 88 days later.

57,000 Nashville customers still without power nearly a week after the storm

22,000 still out more than a week after

THE BARRIER

The hardest part is the form.

THE TENNESSEE DUA TRAP, IN THREE LINES

1. File regular state unemployment first.
   Choose “Lack of Work,” then “Disaster related closure.”
2. DUA is a separate federal benefit.
   You still have to apply for it.
3. Apply right away.
   Even before DUA is approved for your county.

5.6 million people applied for FEMA disaster assistance in 2016 to 2018.

Officials told GAO that survivors “did not understand and were frustrated by” one step, the SBA loan requirement.

OUR IDEA

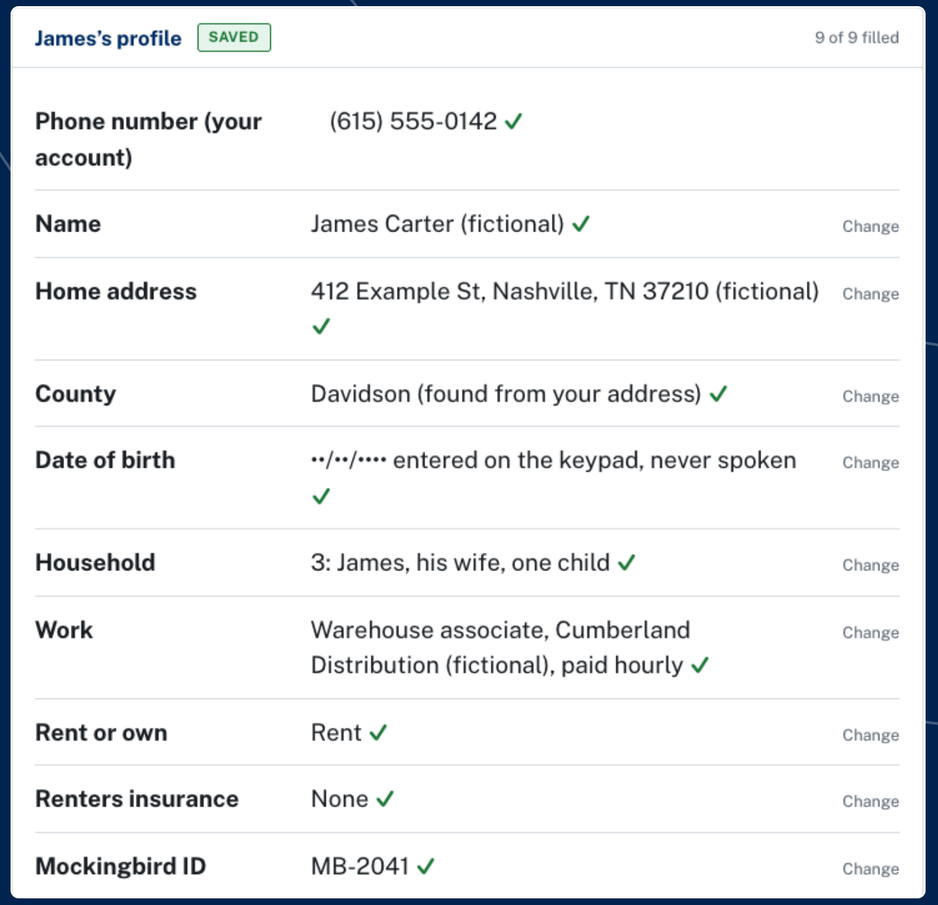

Talk, don’t type.

1. Build your profile once.
   By conversation, before anything happens. Name, county, household, rent or own, insurance, work.

2. It pre-fills any application.
   Disaster unemployment, FEMA, SBA, SNAP, utility and rent help, local services.

3. In a disaster, say only what is new.
   Phone and text first, because ice storms take out power and internet.

Families get the ear. Responders get the eye.

Screen 1: the profile fills in as James talks (fictional).

WHY YOU CAN TRUST IT

We prepare. You review and submit.

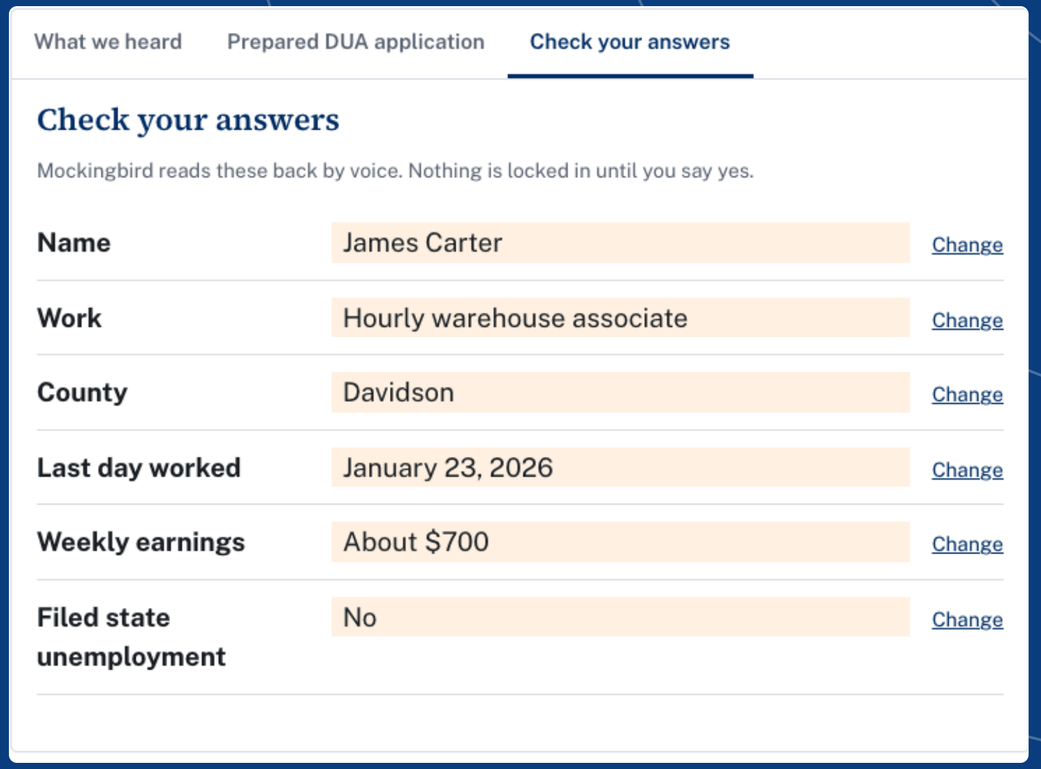

Read-back before anything locks in.
The AI repeats the key facts and waits for a yes.

“Likely eligible,” never “approved.”
A small rules module decides the label. Demo rules, not an official determination.

Your SSN is never spoken.
Typed on a keypad into a masked field, along with date of birth.

Privacy on the map.
County level, never a home address. Public view shows counts only.

Safety first.
If someone mentions injury or danger, the form stops and the AI gives emergency guidance.

“Check your answers”: nothing is locked in until James says yes.
